HISTORICAL WRITING: SHORT PUBLICATION

ELIGIBILITY STANDARDS

This category recognizes English language non-fiction short publications such as articles, blog posts, booklets, and pamphlets.

- Subject matter must relate to Toronto's archaeological, built, cultural, or natural heritage or history.
- The short publication must have been published between January 1 and December 31, 2017.
- The short publication must be between 750 and 10,000 words in length.
- The short publication must be available to the general public, and may be published in a newspaper, magazine, journal, or online. Theses and school essays are not eligible.
- Only one short publication per author will be considered by the jury. In the case of multiple submissions for a single author, the author will be contacted to confirm which publication will stand for nomination.

The jury will consider the following criteria:

- Advocacy: Does the publication pose or answer questions about the importance of heritage and its role in community building, and/or demonstrate a high level of commitment to heritage conservation and promotion?
- Scholarship: Does the publication contribute to the field of historical knowledge, draw on a diversity of sources, and provide appropriate acknowledgement of sources?
- Education: Does the publication engage the general public and provide a framework for understanding history and/or issues around heritage in Toronto?
- Production Value: Does the publication exhibit high quality in design, editing, illustration, and layout that effectively contributes to achieving excellence in advocacy, scholarship, and education as outlined above?
